

ULSTER PROJECT ARLINGTON

The Mission of the Ulster Project is to help young Christian leaders from Northern Ireland and the United States develop the skills necessary to become peacemakers by providing a safe environment to learn about and practice the attributes necessary to unite people when differences divide them. This is all accomplished through the development of tolerance, trust, and an ongoing positive relationship among these potential leaders from Christian traditions. Each year the Ulster Project Arlington sponsors sixteen Catholic and Protestant teens from Northern Ireland who travel to America to live with similar host teens in Arlington for the month of July. During this time, a structured program of activities is presented to breakdown the historical prejudicial barriers, create a sense of unity, and introduce a spirit of brotherhood. Activities will encourage team building and develop leadership skills while allowing the teens to explore the differences that have divided them.
